For Standing Up For Free, Local Radio Listeners!

Local radio stations are the pulse of communities in Wyoming and across the nation, providing the quality entertainment, weather, news and emergency information listeners need and want.

But an effort by the foreign-owned record labels to impose a “performance tax” on local radio could change all that. A tax on radio could financially cripple local stations, reduce the variety of music stations play and stifle new artists trying to start their careers.

Luckily, Wyoming listeners have a champion in Sen. Barrasso. He recently introduced the Local Radio Freedom Act, opposing a new tax on radio and protecting local listeners.

Sen. Barrasso understands that radio is the voice of the people. A tax on local radio is bad for radio, bad for artists and bad for listeners.
