

The Next Big Artist ... brought to you by your local radio stations.

Why have record labels sent local radio stations millions of gold and platinum albums over the years? To thank them for promoting artists and putting money in their pockets.

Radio is the number one way listeners discover new music and new artists. This free promotion translates to billions of dollars each year in music, concert ticket and merchandise sales for labels and their performers.

So why are the record labels trying to bite the hand that feeds them by imposing a performance tax on local radio?

Don't penalize radio for the bad business decisions of the labels. Support the Local Radio Freedom Act and keep radio free.

www.NoPerformanceTax.org

Thanks to the many radio stations across the country who contributed photos of their gold and platinum albums to build this mosaic.