Press release:

The Owners of WEVV Bayou City Broadcasting Evansville, Inc. resolve DISH lawsuit related to underpayment of retransmission fees

Bruse Loyd, attorney for Bayou City Broadcasting Evansville, Inc. ("BCBE"), announced today that the lawsuit he filed against DISH Network on behalf of BCBE on August 31, 2015 in a Colorado federal court due to underpayment of retransmission fees has been resolved with the full amount owed to BCBE being paid, plus interest. Terms required that the payment be funded prior to dismissal.

The lawsuit accused DISH Network of knowingly and improperly prorating retransmission fees in order to short change BCBE significant contractly owed revenues.

"This was an open and shut matter from the beginning. There is a written agreement between BCBE and DISH that dictates payment terms. It was very clear that DISH unilaterally violated those terms. We are very satisfied with the outcome as well as the expeditious nature of the resolution."
